

Posiflex Business Machines Certified for Android 10 Google Mobile Service for Kiosk Platforms

Hayward, California – June 24, 2021 –Posiflex Business Machines, Inc. announces a new Android 10 Google Mobile Service (GMS) certification for its exceptional line of kiosks. The certification allows Google Play and other GMS applications to be compatible with Posiflex’s Android-based kiosks.

This compatibility is significant, as it enables Posiflex’s kiosks to connect to Google’s proven secure network and allows full access to its vast library of applications in its Google Play Store. In addition, with GMS certification, the user benefits from convenient Over-the-Air (OTA) software updates and applications stability.

Although Android OS compatibility is rather common-place for mobile devices and tablets, kiosks add more complexity to the mix, requiring more robust functions and applications geared toward customer and business solutions. Posiflex GMS-certified kiosks – as well as its terminals and tablets – ensure Android-based applications can run on them optimally.

The ability to access a plethora of applications focused on Retail, Hospitality, Healthcare and other critical industries is a significant feature that allows retailers to utilize virtually any application that will fulfill their business requirements. This access, in turn, translates to a better overall self-service experience for patrons.

“Gaining certified access to Google’s services and its Google Play store opens up a wide range of possibilities for our Android-based line of kiosks to provide substantial self-service solutions specifically focused on retailers’ needs,” add Posiflex Vice President of Sales and Marketing, Doyle Ledford.
